Practitioners and professionals - we need your help!

We want to be able to provide you with the right information, advice and training so that you/your service can meet the needs of children and young people with special educational needs and disabilities well within your job role/service area. We need your feedback in order to be able to do this. Please complete the SEND workforce development survey 2023, by clicking HERE, it is open until Friday 28 July 2023.

The survey should take approximately 15 -20 minutes of your time to complete and is for anyone working with children/young people who may require additional support or SEND support, as well as children/young people with Educational Health Care Plans.

Case Studies: Advisory Teachers for Cognition and Learning

The advisory teachers support the identification and inclusion of children and young people who have cognition and learning difficulties. This includes, for example, literacy, numeracy, memory and executive functioning difficulties. They aim to support schools by offering evidence-based advice and training in order to remove barriers to learning and to support children and young people's progress across the curriculum.

The following case studies are examples of how the advisory teachers for cognition and learning have supported schools to improve outcomes for individual children and young people.

Click here to view the case studies and feel free to contact the advisory teachers for further information on how they could support cognition and learning needs within your setting.
